

From the President

By Cheryl Gleason

Spring has sprung, and we are now in full swing for our Annual Fundraiser – Micro Masterpieces. We have given out all our panels and now await the treasures to start pouring in for their photos and placement onto the auction platform. For me, it is like Christmas morning when I see an artist approaching with 6"x6" panels in their hands, the anticipation to see what treasures they have created. I know the teachers and the kids who receive art supplies for their classrooms feel much the same way when they come to pick up their bags and see potential in those art supplies. I cannot imagine what school would have been like if there were no art classes, no music, no band. I know many artists feel the same way. This is one reason we donate our creativity -- to watch artists grow, whether kids year to year at the Student Art Show at the MACC or our members of Rancho Cordova Arts. I have been privileged to witness the growth of many artists these past 6.5 years while working for Cordova Community Council.

Rancho Cordova Arts has pride in the community it serves. As an organization we participate in many community events such as Kids Day in the Park and iFest (International Festival). This year we are starting a program in the summer called “Teach the Teachers.” We are offering workshops for teachers in Rancho Cordova who teach elementary and middle school kids. These art workshops will expand their artistic horizon to bring new art projects to their kiddos. If you are interested in teaching an art workshop for the teachers, please reach out to me with your ideas via email.

Your RArts board members are very active in these events, but they cannot do it alone. Being a part of an organization and a community of artists means giving your time and participating. We don't expect everyone has the capacity to volunteer or attend all the events, but we do encourage you to get involved. Creating a vibrant art community takes people people getting involved, and RArts and the MACC have plenty of occasions. If you are interested in becoming more involved, please fill out our volunteer form on the website at RanchoCordovaArts.org and/or rcmacc.org. We strive to give our artists opportunities to grow by providing professional development opportunities. This year RArts is sponsoring Business Strategy for Artists series with business coach Elizabeth Harrington. These classes are at the MACC from 5:30-7:30PM. Also, the MACC is having a hands-on workshop on copyright registration class with California Lawyers for the Arts. Workshops and classes like these would cost you a couple hundred dollars if you were to take them on your own. This is all part of building a vibrant art community.

Thank you all for your donations to the fundraiser and I look forward to all the fun activities and moments this year will bring.

Looking for Volunteers

We are always looking for volunteers with imagination, passion, and energy to help with upcoming events. If you would like to be a part of this exuberant group, helping make our community a better place to live, work and play, please contact Cheryl Gleason at the MACC or by email:

Rancho Cordova Arts Celebrated as City's "Distinguished Community Service Organization"

by Marsha Mason & Jamie Perry

Rancho Cordova City Hall was transformed into a galleon, sailing shark-infested waters replete with salty pirates, skeletons of forgotten buccaneers and chests of booty galore! "Treasuring Volunteers" was the theme for Cordova Community Council's 24th Annual Community Volunteer Awards Banquet where 180 community members gathered to celebrate on March 8th, 2024.

Rancho Cordova Arts was honored as the Distinguished Community Service Organization for being a home-grown organization whose passion is to make Rancho Cordova a more vibrant, artful place. We bring fun, free art activities to the public at Kid's Day in the Park and iFest (International Festival), staff the quarterly Art at City Hall exhibits, offer art classes and workshops, and put on special art events like Winter Fest and [the former] Brushes & Brews, among other things. We also support arts education for children in our K-12 schools through our MicroMasterpieces annual fundraiser where artists donate 6"X6" artworks for auction. The proceeds have so far provided over $35,000 in new art supplies for teachers to use in Rancho Cordova classrooms.

Our amazing team, nine Rancho Cordova Arts Board members, took the stage to receive the award from Cordova Community Council Executive Director, Shelly Blanford. President Cheryl Gleason accepted on our behalf, and encouraged attendees to participate in the MicroMasterpieces auction, June 3rd through 8th. Our award plaque now hangs in the stairwell of the MACC (Mills Station Arts & Culture Center).

Micro Masterpieces 2024

By Edith LeFebvre

Our Micro Masterpieces annual fundraiser is helping grow the next generation of creative thinkers - the kids in our community! Proceeds are used to buy new art supplies for K-12 teachers in Rancho Cordova schools for art projects in their classrooms. Micro Masterpieces offers lots of ways to be involved – as an artist, by donating 6” X 6” art; as a collector, by purchasing original art at great prices; and as an extraordinarily thoughtful gift-giver, by gifting beautiful, original art to the special people in your life!

Tell your friends and family! Bidding at www.32Auctions.com/mmrca24 opens on Monday, June 3rd at 8am and closes on Saturday, June 8th at 3pm. Bidding starts at $20 on each artwork. Subsequent bids must be at least $3 higher. Sales tax is included in each purchase. (Out of State buyers are not subject to California sales tax and may choose to donate or be refunded the included tax.) 32Auctions does not ask for your credit card information until you actually purchase your winning bids.

Rancho Cordova Arts has given over $35,000 in new art supplies to the kids in our local schools with funds raised with Micro Masterpieces!

It feels great to be involved in community, and this is an event that brings community together! We hope you'll join us for the Micro Masterpieces Pick-up Party at the MACC on Saturday, June 8th at 4pm. We'll celebrate reaching this year's goal of $15,000 with art friends and refreshments!

The Rancho Cordova Student Show

by Tabitha Jensen & Cheryl Gleason

The MACC and Rancho Cordova Arts invite you to join us in celebrating student artists in our 5th annual Student Art Show at the MACC, April 11-27. This year's exhibit showcases the art of Rancho Cordova K-12 students from three school districts and spans both floors at the MACC. As the work comes in from each school, staff cut mats for each piece of art that is not framed or on canvas. Last year Anu and Cheryl Gleason spent over 40 hours preparing the art for display.

This is the most labor-intensive show of the year, and we couldn't do it without the help of volunteers like Deborah Kelly and Judy Pinner gave last year.

Teachers submit artwork created by their students for entry into the annual show. This year we will have around 400 pieces of art from public and private school students. We include all schools within the city limits of Rancho Cordova. CCHAT is a school for hearing-impaired students; they are participating for the second year.

FROM ONE CREATIVE TO ANOTHER

by Jamie S. Perry

If you're reading this right now, you are either an artist, a maker, or someone who appreciates the work produced by those who create. This article is an introduction to why we create, how we create, and what compels us to create.

In short, making things is and has always been a method of communicating with the people in our world, beings who may be outside of it, and with ourselves. We 'speak' the common language of imagery and artifact.

Being someone who delights in being described as creative, artistic, talented, imaginative, original, inventive, gifted, and clever, I wear each adjective as a badge of honor! I delight in having the ability to easily communicate using images and coming up with fresh ideas. And I'm still learning that these qualities have to be polished in order to keep them bright and beautiful...

To do that, I have created a special time to get into my head and check in with my Artist-self. It's commonly called a "Creative Practice". (Practice makes Perfect...) Without my creative practice, I become stagnant and uncommunicative: just the right mental environment for "artist's block" and laziness to creep in.

Creative Practice takes many forms and it may be different for every one of us creative people. The common aspect is that our practice is (ideally) something that we can do every day that may become the best part of OUR EVERY day. A creative practice keeps me growing in all kinds of directions, sometimes many all at once! There may be discoveries that excite and ignite my itch to make something IMMEDIATELY! It's time for me to put something special into the world that has never been there before! Think about it: On any given day, we creatives have the ability to put things in the world that have never before existed. This is our Super Power.

"This is our Super Power."

One of the easiest ways to exercise this magic part of the brain is to keep a sketchbook/journal. I take only a little time to scribble a gesture drawing or write down spontaneous thoughts, words, or ideas. I began my practice by setting aside a minimum of five minutes while having morning coffee. No TV, no music, no newspapers, no devices - just me, a sketchbook, a pencil, and my thoughts. I increased my sketchbook time each week, and got to a place where the time varied depending what was going on in my head and what my day looked like. Now I have a sketchbook with me at all times. (Things I think I'll put down later, often float away forgotten...)

Over the years, I produced at least 50 sketchbooks. They stood on the shelf in my studio. Now and then (especially when I wasn't sure what I wanted to work on) I'd choose a sketchbook at random and start thumbing through its pages. A doodle or word could shift my thinking onto new, unexpected trajectories! Invariably something would "talk to me" and would become A-Thing-In-The-World that I had to create!

You may say, "I already know all this." And you probably do. But it never hurts to make a date with your Artist-self, if only to keep a Creative creative.

Mask Show at City Hall - Deadline April 19

by Cheryl Gleason

Hard to believe it is almost intake time for our Quarter 2 show – "MASKS!" This show is all about masks. Masks are physical things we don for ritual, holiday, ceremony or just for fun. Masks can also be the many faces or "masks" we wear literally on our face like those created by make-up artists for movies and theater. I collect African masks, and masks from my travels. This show can be about a three-dimensional object, or it can be presented in a two-dimensional way on canvas or panel. At City Hall we do not have space in the hallways for sculpture stands. Make sure that your piece can either fit in the case (maximum 9" deep x 16" tall) or hang safely on the wall.

Intake day (April 26) is also pick up day for the previous exhibit, "Textures." This process means fewer trips to City Hall for the artists and reduces staff hours. Make sure you fill out the online form for the "MASKS" show on the Cordova Community Council website under 'programs – art at city hall'. The online submission form captures your data for the creation of labels for the show. Spelling, punctuation, correct emails and prices are critical.

Our Juror, Dwight Head, is a talented Sacramento artist and has juried before for us. He is a surrealist artist and illustrator. He depicts images from everyday life using personal contemporary imagery. I cannot wait to see what you bring to intake.

Upstairs at the MACC

by Cheryl Gleason

One of the ways to highlight our Rancho Cordova Arts members is to be a Spotlight Artist in the upstairs gallery at the MACC. The artist must have a body of work enough to fill the space, curate a cohesive body of work, and have a title that represents the body of work. The artist is responsible for hanging the work and labeling the work or providing the gallery with an inventory list to print labels. Any signage such as the artist's statement, biography, CV or explanations of the work must be created by the artist. Then finally the artist has an artist talk where you can hear the premise of the work and the inspirations of the artist. The artist talks are great ways to get to know your fellow members and artists. Learn a bit about how they got to where they are now and what excites them about the work they do. Hearing the thoughts of an artist can really give you an appreciation and understanding about their art. It is stories artists tell which bridge connections to a piece of art or even a body of work. It may also help to interpret others' work when you see similarities.

This year so far we have had three wonderful spotlight Artists – Alexandra Yakovlevas' "Segmented Abstract", Elizabeth Halls' "Out of the Shadows", and Susan Cooper's "Endangered." If you missed these artist talks, there are many more this year to come. When a MACC exhibition takes up both the first and second floor there is no spotlight artist.

May brings a thought-provoking show to the Upstairs Gallery at the MACC. Cherie Hackers' "Linked by Nature" is a project that started in 2003. "Linked by Nature" runs from May 9th through May 25th. Mark your calendars to attend the reception and artist talk on Friday May 17th 5:30-7:30PM. Guest Host Cheryl Gleason* CEO and founder of Cal Cap Film Office asked me if I would do an Arts and Culture Podcast for the “Rancho Cordova Podcast.” The podcast drops a new episode each week and covers leaders, entrepreneurs, people in arts and culture, sports figures and much more. If you want to know a little bit more about Rancho Cordova and the history and people of the city this podcast is great to get to know some of the highlights and personalities within the community.

We now have three episodes for your listening pleasure, Marsha Mason, Treasurer and founding President of Rancho Cordova Arts, Pete Nowlen Conductor of the Symphony d’ Oro in Rancho Cordova, and Daniel Fong CEO of the Mandarins Drum and Bugle Corps. Later in April I will be interviewing Steven Winlock, arts supporter and graduate of Cordova High. Inside the Artist Studio

by Cheryl Gleason

Inside the Artist Studio is a project that started in 2020 during the pandemic when artists and their stories were not being told. This weekly vlog is to bring awareness and excitement around the incredible artists we have here in the Sacramento Metro Area.

Many artists' work never gets highlighted in the larger public arena. This project brings the artist to you as we talk about how they got started, when they started, and a little about their process. Many amazing artists started late in life, their studio is their dining table, or they have an unusual process.

Help Needed

If you have some tech skills and would like to help on this project, we can start filming again.

If we have a video editing person in the group who wants to make a few dollars let me know at:
